I'm not sure about this, but when you mentioned the woman with the staff, I immediately thought of the amazing Russian illustrator Ivan Bilibin and his illustrations of many Russian folktales. I apologized, but you invited me to come over immediately and disturb you some .

Rather than 3 children, there is an old man with an oar and a boy in the front of the boat. Back in my nest that night I felt a burning in my heart, I thought, would never go astray, content at home, I wanted no new yearning, I knew not that the Green Man held such sway. At the corner of Main and Crawford you shine in the hazy mercury vapor light, it falls like well worn velvet on your shoulders. I think his name was something like Trundle. Printed in the USA. I don't remember it being on a record although it might have been but the local library only had the book. In Balzac's story, a young painter persuades his beautiful girlfriend to pose for an older man, a painter who has gone mad over a masterpiece he has been working on.
