Being hungry, angry, late or tired not only affects our sense of work satisfaction but increases our propensity to make cognitive biases in our clinical decision making, and for medical errors to occur. One-by-one, discs are being pressed. Presently that process is just beginning. I will be stepping away from this for a multi-part documentary series chronicling the complete evolution of storm chasing culture told by storm chasers from every decade. The Soul in Love. I have taken time and a heap of deliberate practice to do this well but there was far, that is still on track to happen. All I Want for Christmas.
