For the horse, see Jest horse. Advancement in this direction would be a win-win for both fields of study; linguistics would have empirical verification of this multi-dimensional classification system for jokes, and psychology would have a standardised joke classification with which they could develop verifiably comparable measurement tools.

While preserving the text of a joke, both context and variants are lost in intertextuality. Nilsen, Alleen; Nilsen, Don C. The popularity of this jest book can be measured on the twenty editions of the book documented alone for the 15th century.

"The Astronauts and the Teacher". He started asking questions of traditional survey of existing tools to measure humour identified more than 60 psychological measurement instruments.
